

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY HOUSING INFORMATION FOR AMERICAN LANGUAGE PROGRAM STUDENTS

One housing choice for American Language Program students is in Columbia University suite style dormitories. You can live in a dormitory all year round as long as you continue to be enrolled for full-time classes at the American Language Program. These dormitories are located within several blocks away from the American Language Program office.

There are from 2 to 12 students living within each suite. You will share a bedroom with one other person (called a double) and share bathroom and kitchen facilities with others in your suite. You will be provided with a single bed, dresser, wardrobe, chair and desk. You are responsible for providing your own linen, towels and pillows. Rooms are equipped with ethernet jacks for internet access and telephones. There are laundry facilities in the basement.

All double rooms are single sex. Each suite has two bathrooms - one for males, one for females.

There is no smoking allowed in the dormitory.

Only full-time students are eligible to live in Columbia housing.

All residents in University accommodations are subject to the Rules and Regulations of Housing. If you disobey these Rules and Regulations your housing contract will be canceled and you will have to leave the dormitories. It is required that each Resident will be clean, quiet, and considerate of other students. You will be living in the midst of full-time Columbia University graduate students studying for degrees. As specified in the "Terms and Conditions of Residence" of your housing contract: Noise which disturbs other Residents is prohibited. Overnight guests are not allowed in a double suite room accommodation. Student is responsible for his/hers own mess in all common areas such as bathrooms and kitchens. If you want to have visitors, host a study group or have a party, make sure that you discuss these plans with your roommate and suitemates, well in advance. You also need permission from your Resident Advisor. We require the use of headphones when watching television, or listening to music or the radio if the sound is audible outside your room.
